> Austro-Hungary. THE RUSSO-TURKISH WAR. CHICAGO, December 11th. The Tribune's London special says: On Satur. day, after Osman Pashe had found his escape impossible, his army starving and perishing with oold, and no hope of success; he sent a parlementairs to the Russian head-nuarters, with a special letter addressed personally to the Grand Duke Nicholas, as chief of the army investing Plevna The Grand Duke declined ofther to accept the letter or to receive the parlementaire, and directed him to be escored to the headquarters of Prince Charles, as Commander in Chief of the allied armies besinging Plevna. The purport of the letter was a request for favorable terms of capitulation, and an especial request from Osman Pasha tabe allowed to surrender his sword to the Grand Dake Nicholas. This being impossible the parlementairs returned. On Sunday another desperate assault was made on the Russian right, in which Qaman Pasha himself was wounded and about 3,000 put hors de combat. Nothing remained but unconditional surrender, and thus

At 9.30 on Sunday morning Osman Puha's entire army attacked the Russian Grandier Corps holding the line of investment on the left bank of the river Vid, and envouring to force the passage. The attack was made with desperate energy, and a portion of the Turkish troops did. in fact, penetrate the line of entrenel batteries, but all attempts to break through the positions of the Grenadions were ineffectual After, five hours of severe fighting the Turks wore defeated. Osman Pashs surrounded on all sides, was compelled to surrender his whole army. Advices from Bucharest put the number of Turkish prisoners taken at Plevna at 40,000, and the number of gons at 400. The ground which was the scene of the sortie was literally sireng with thousands of dead and dying. Osman is described as desperato, is everywhere the theme of conversation. The sufferings of the Turks in the beleagured town were dreadful Cold, disease and famine decimated their ranks and reduced the soldiers to living akelotous.
